1. The engineer officers' barracks at Baja is at the corner of Hajnald and Dozsa Gyorgy Streets. It is now occupied by a Hungarian technical officers' school.
2. The number of students is 350 to 400. The trainees remain here for six months, having been chosen after a year's service with troops. They wear dark green shoulder boards and insignia with a white border. During the summer, reserve officers come for a refresher course of one or two months.
3. The subjects studied are the construction of military roads, fortification, bridge-building, minelaying and removal, and all types of explosives.
4. On paper the school is motorized, but it has no trucks of its own, borrowing from an engineer battalion which is under its command. The school has five passenger cars, six jeeps and one radio car.
5. The engineer barracks was formerly called the Maria Teresia Barracks. It is on Dóssa György Street.
6. It is occupied by an engineer battalion, under command of the officers' school, and is regarded as a provisional formation. It has 520 to 540 men. The unit holds exercises with men from the officers' school.
